NEWS DESK. In a joint endeavour to tackle critical issues surrounding Menstrual Hygiene Management (MHM) and tax reforms on sanitary products, the Centre for Business and Economics (CBER) at the Institute of Business Administration (IBA) Karachi, partnered with WaterAid Pakistan to organise a provincial dialogue at the varsity's city campus. The event, attended by key stakeholders, delved into policy discussions and strategies aimed at enhancing MHM integration into provincial frameworks and advocating for necessary tax reforms related to sanitary products. WaterAid Pakistan Provincial Manager, Muhammad Khaliq stressed the pivotal role of MHM integration in upholding the dignity and well-being of women and girls across the province. Addressing the gap analysis of MHM and tax reforms, WaterAid Pakistan Gender Advisor, Raheema Panhwar, underscored the challenges within governmental policies at both provincial and national levels.
